Imagine you are the narrator in 'Two Gentlemen of Verona'. You were touched by the love and devotion of the boys for their sister. Write a letter to a friend about the two boys and the attraction you felt for them.

Answer:

11, Church Road Venice

25 June 20XX Dear John

I hope you are hale and hearty. I am writing about selfless action and sacrifice of the two small boys of Verona.

Life has many surprises. I happened to encounter two boys in Verona. They were homeless orphans. But they were working hard to earn more money. They spent less and saved more to save the life of their only surviving blood relative, their sister Lucia. She was suffering from tuberculosis of the spine. Her treatment was going on in a hospital.

These two boys undertook all kinds of work for saving the life of their sister. Their selfless action, their sacrifice and their total devotion to their cause impressed me so much. Their series of virtues earn our respect, sympathy and love for them. They were too self-respecting and proud to show their personal problems or agony to any outsider. They never asked for any favour from anyone.

They are indeed two little angels. I salute their sacrifice and far-sightedness. With love.

Yours sincerely
